PROJECT OVERVIEW

With more than 2,000 jury trials in Indiana each year, a critical part of each trial is gathering an impartial jury as guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution. The Indiana Supreme Court, the Judicial Technology and Automation Committee (JTAC), the Indiana Jury Committee, Indiana Department of Revenue (DOR), Indiana Department of Health (ISDH), and the Bureau of Motor Vehicles (BMV) have developed a comprehensive repository of potential jurors for Indiana trial courts in compliance with the full intent of Jury Rule 2.

In the past, potential jurors were called using voter registration lists. Later, voter registration lists were used in combination with some other list. That process still did not include all segments of the over-18 population and in some cases caused a disincentive to vote.

The Indiana Supreme Court, and its Judicial Technology and Automation Committee (JTAC), Judicial Center and Jury Committee, and the Indiana Department of Revenue (DOR), and Bureau of Motor Vehicles (BMV) partnered to create a comprehensive, statewide repository of potential jurors for Indiana trial courts that now includes more than 99% of eligible jurors.

MORE INCLUSIVE JURY POOL

HOW IT WORKS

In September 2005, the Indiana Supreme Court approved the first statewide jury list of 4,503,032 records, which contained 99.93% of the 18-and-older population according to the 2000 Indiana Census (4,506,089).

The list— available for use in 2006—was created from a combination of BMV and DOR records which were merged after duplicates were eliminated. With assistance from Purdue University, JTAC further filtered the resulting list by removing individuals identified as deceased or underage for jury service and those who had moved out of state. Finally, the list was validated against U.S. Postal Service address data, which standardized the form of addresses, added the county for each address, and flagged addresses that may have delivery errors.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING

The new list is more inclusive of Indiana's citizens, and has decreased the amount of undeliverable mail. Many courts have noticed a considerable increase in the diversity of jury pools.

QUOTES FROM NEWS COVERAGE

"List heaven"

"A monumental change"

"A good thing"

Since the list was initially implemented, news publications throughout the state have circulated various positive articles featuring or citing this project.

In fall 2006, the Indiana Supreme Court was honored with awards from the American Judicature Society and the American Civil Liberties Union of Indiana for this project.

CONTINUED WORK

To create the 2007 list, the Indiana Supreme Court, JTAC, and Indiana Jury Committee have once again teamed with the DOR and BMV, and for the first time, with the Indiana State Department of Health (ISDH).

The team has worked to make an updated list that is even more accurate than the list created in 2005. The new list more precisely excludes deceased, under-aged, out-of-state, and non-citizen records.

A new feature JTAC will offer in 2007 is making the lists available electronically over its secure extranet website, INcite (Indiana Court Information Technology Extranet). The 2007 list is currently available to each county on CD, which will be sent via registered mail. The next step is to create a system that will allow jury administrators to export the list electronically to any of several file formats for use with their jury management systems or with Microsoft Office products. JTAC is also developing a jury management system that will be piloted in select counties during 2007 and made available statewide in 2008.
